

Sara LaLumia is the David A. Wells Professor of Economics at Williams College. She received a Ph.D. in Economics from the University of Michigan. Her research investigates how the U.S. individual income tax, and particularly the tax treatment of families, affects individuals' labor supply, educational choices, tax reporting behavior, and other outcomes.