Helpful Tips to Ensure a Smooth Submission Process

- Gather all the details for your submission (presenting author details, abstract)

- New this year, everyone must create a new profile. Start gathering your author contact and affiliation details.

- The system will request 2 email addresses: your primary email and a secondary email address. This will ensure system generated emails will reach you and not get caught in spam filters!

- If submitting a complete session, have the contact details for the presenting author for each paper you are submitting. If not, each presenting author will receive an email asking them to submit the paper details.

- Panel sessions will be in roundtable format, just speakers, no papers.

- Complete sessions include 4 individual papers.

- Please note that complete session submissions are mere suggestions of groupings. The conference committee reserves the right to consider and accept individual papers from a complete session rather than accepting the complete session.

- For law related topics, submit to the topic area your work best fits. You will be asked during the submission process if your work is Law Related. If yes, click the designated box on the submission form.

- Don't want to present your work? Consider volunteering to be a session chair or discussant and join your colleagues in Detroit!

- New this year, both the Next Generation Session and the Graduate Research Forum submissions will close at the same time as the general call for papers.
